SCHOOL BOARD O.K.'S PLAN FOR TRADES OFFICE

Will Spend $1,565 for Addition at High School Building

FINANCIAL AID DENIED BY PWA

Three Contracts Are Let On Various Equipment Articles

Board of education members last night voted to spend $1,565 to construct a second story room at the High school for a Trades Class office, despite the refusal of the Public Works Administration to participate in the improvement.

Officials of the PWA explained, in a letter, that a 45 per cent federal grant could not be made for the project since the work was not included in the original and amended plans of the recent High school annex project.

Built Over Scenery Room

The board plans to erect the Trades Class office over the new stage scenery room at the rear of the building. The work will be done by Johnson and Carlson, Cleveland contractors, who are completing improvement work at the High school.

The firm has completed the remodeling of the home economics room at the building and all that remains to be done is the installation of stoves, clothes dryer and additional equipment following the awarding of bids by the board.

Bids were opened last night on approximately 20 different articles but only three contracts were actually awarded. The others were held up pending further investigation by Supt. of Schools E. S. Kerr of the products as well as the board's funds for the new equipment.

The Natural Gas Co. of W. Virginia was given the contract for three new gas ranges and one clothes dryer, while the Finley Music Co. was declared low bidder for three electric ranges.

Other Bids Sought

Other articles, on which bids were sought, to be used in the home economics laboratory and elsewhere in the High school building, included an electric refrigerator, sewing machines, a grand piano, a radio-gramophone, 60 music stands, music bookcases, filing cabinets of several types, storage cabinets, chairs, a mimeograph machine, a sound projector movie machine, five new rugs, davenport and one couch, venetian blinds, tables and desks.

A meeting will be held March 18 to discuss these items further.

Board members approved a $140 expenditure for the painting of the walls of the home economics department sewing room and dining hall.

Supt. Kerr reported that the work of sound-proofing the music room in the basement of the Fourth Street building has been completed.

SCHOOL FUNDS FOR '40 PARED

Appropriation Measure Is Approved by Members Of Board

A 1940 appropriation of $297,215.34, compared to $333,786.89 the previous year, was approved by board of education members Monday night. Last year's allocation was higher due to extra money in the building fund to take care of the construction of the six-room High school annex which is now completed, it was explained.

The board at the start of the year approved a temporary three-month appropriation until a report of estimated resources could be obtained from the county auditor.

The appropriation resolution was passed last night with one dissenting vote, that of John T. Burns, who objected to inclusion of a wage increase for the clerk of the board.

Funds Listed

A recapitulation of the appropriation measure shows the amounts set up in the various funds as follows:

General administration: Personal service, $9,450; teachers' salaries and wages, $150,930. Coordinate activities: Attendance officer salary, $1,600. Plant operation: Salaries of janitors, etc., $16,500. Special services: Lecturers, $50. Supplies: Including text books, fuel, school library books, $18,250. Materials and maintenance: $3,500.

Contract and open order service: $14,386.02, including school building repairs, $3,161.02; pupil transportation, $4,500.

Fixed charges and contributions (insurance and taxes), $2,331.41.

BELIEVE DAVEY WILL RUN AGAIN

Political Friends Predict He Will Announce Wednesday

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 5.—Political friends of former Gov. Martin L. Davey predicted today that he would announce his candidacy Wednesday for the Democratic nomination for a third term.

The Kent tree surgeon-politician declared last week that he was "seriously considering" entering the race against seven declared candidates, but since Sen. Vic Donahue's decision to retire from public life some observers thought it likely that Davey might seek the United States senate post.

Davey was in New York and expected to return tomorrow.

Francis W. Poulson, former chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, wired 200 Ohio party leaders asking their "advice" whether he should run for Donahue's senate seat. John McSweney, of Wooster, former congressman-at-large, already has announced his candidacy.

At Akron, Dr. Christian F. Rumlaid, Kent State university chemistry teacher, filed for the Republican congressional nomination in the 14th district composed of Summit, Portage, Medina and Lorain counties. Rep. Dow W. Harter, Akron Democrat, has indicated he would seek re-election.

J. Freer Bittinger of Ashland, former speaker of the Ohio house of representatives, said he was considering entering the

COUNTY RELIEF LOAD UP AGAIN

Rolls Increase 102 Cases Or 404 More Persons, For March

LISBON, March 5.—Columbiana county's relief load again showed a gain for the second consecutive month when county commissioners today allocated $10,792 for relief purposes during March, as compared to $9,176 allocated in February.

Relief rolls in the county have jumped 102 cases from 669 to 771, while an inventory shows 404 more persons, or 2,098 on relief on March 1, an increase over the preceding month attributed by Relief Director John W. Orr to supplemental relief issued to families of non-scheduled WPA workers.

The relief load in Salem township continued as the heaviest in the county, showing an increase of six cases, or 57 persons, making a relief load of 125 cases and 463 persons for which $1,852 was allocated. St. Clair township has the second largest load with 73 persons receiving aid in 73 cases, an increase of nine cases and 29 persons, for which an allocation of $1,092 was made. The center township, while third on the list, decreased the rolls by five cases involving 13 persons, and now shows 266 persons receiving aid in 94 cases, for which $1,064 was set aside.

Other townships in the county relief area and their allocations are as follows: Liverpool, $960; Washington, $928; West, $580; Unity, $568; Madison, $528; Middleton, $516; Yellow Creek, $492; Fairfield, $460; Hanover, $460; Elkrun, $352; Franklin, $344; Knox, $290; Wayne, $144; Perry, $120; Butler, $72.

LOOT IS $138 IN LISBON ROBBERY

Youth Rifles Safe, Takes Cash, As Attendant Greases Car

LISBON, March 5.—The Hanna service station at the corner of W. Lincoln way and Beaver st. was robbed of $138 last night by a young man who had loitered about the station for several hours to "get warm."

The thief, who robbed a safe when the attendant was not looking, escaped in an automobile bearing Pennsylvania license plates 58A-2. State highway patrolmen are checking the plates with Pennsylvania state motor police.

Checks Are Recovered

The robber, said to be about 22 years old, was first believed to have stolen $600, including currency and checks, but investigation this morning showed an actual loss of only $138. The checks, which could not be found last night, were finally located at the rear of the safe.

Francis Rogan, attendant at the station, told deputy sheriffs that

Former Film Star Wins Son's Custody; Ex-Husband Rapped

LOS ANGELES, March 5.—Mae Murray, called a "fit mother" by a judge who awarded her $400 monthly from her ex-husband, David Mdivani, looks forward happily to regaining custody of their son, Kieran, 13.

The blonde star of silent films was radiant as she learned, in a modest Hollywood apartment, that her plea for money to support her son was successful.

"I feel I have been vindicated," she smiled. "All my hopes and struggles to regain my boy have not been in vain."

Superior Judge George Dockweiler ruled in the actress' favor yesterday, at the same time voicing censure of the prince.

"The mother is certainly entitled to have her child under the tutelage in this case," the jurist commented. "There has not been a scintilla of evidence introduced to show she is not a fit mother."

"It is most singular to note," he added, that he (Mdivani) would spend substantial sums for distant relatives and friends abroad. But yet with respect to his own flesh and blood he made no contributions for many years other than a few paltry dollars he gave his wife for his son's needs."

Miss Murray had sought $100 monthly to support Kieran, now residing on a New York farm. She recently was denied his custody by a New York court which ruled she could not offer him a satisfactory home. Her attorney, Milan Medigovich, indicated he would quickly reopen the New York case.

CAVEIN SECTOR WARNED AGAIN

Victims, Calm, Told Subsidence May Go On For Weeks

(By Associated Press)
SHENANDOAH, Pa., March 5.—A strange calm—admixture of suspense and stoicism—pervaded this coal town today in the aftermath of the most widespread series of cave-ins in the history of Pennsylvania's anthracite fields.

Less than 24 hours after rumbling noises and cracking walls sent them scurrying from homes, virtually all the 2,000 persons who evacuated a 16-block area were back home and in bed.

Seek to Recover Damage

Warned the subsidence might continue sporadically for weeks and possibly months while their homes slowly sink into the earth, the folk who know the hard toil of mining and the peril of cavein took steps to recover damages tentatively estimated at $1,000,000.

Governor Arthur H. James pushed an inquiry into the disturbance that took no lives, but played havoc with property—homes and business buildings—ruptured gas mains, buckled street and impaired water service.

Chief victims of the subsidence were a dozen persons sickened by escaping gas fumes.

Rushing here from the state capital at Harrisburg, James directed state officials and mine company experts to four today the honey-comb of mine tunnels beneath Shenandoah, which is situated on a mountain slope. James remarked that "by strange coincidence" his attention was called Sunday night to a petition from 360 Shenandoah residents asking that the state buy

FLOOD DANGERS DECREASE TODAY

Most of State's Flooded Highways Are Re-opened

(By Associated Press)
Swollen streams throughout the state generally receded today and most of the flooded highways were reopened.

The Sandusky and Maumee rivers remained the danger points. The Sandusky, rapidly approaching the 13-foot flood stage at Fremont, forced families on lower street levels to move out furniture. An ice gorge threatened the hydro-electric plant a mile south of the city.

Merchants in Grand Rapids, Wood county, eyed the high waters of the Maumee and moved stocks from floors and lower shelves. Lowlands near Waterville were flooded and at least eight families prepared to evacuate. The river road between Maumee and Waterville remained closed.

Columbus Area Clearing

Columbus reported the Scioto and Olentangy rivers and the Franklin county tributaries falling, with secondary roads being reopened.

The Muskingum and Licking receded at Zanesville, the former going within one foot of the 15-foot stage before starting to fall.

The flood danger at Tiffin abated as Sandusky river ice broke up and was carried downstream.

The Tuscarawas river backed into lowlands at Massillon and Akron, but was receding as dwellers, who had refused to leave, watched from their porches. The river rose within two feet of flood stage at Dover.

Observers saw little chance of an Ohio river flood. The stream was expected to reach a 41-foot crest to

FORGETS LUNCH, STRUCK AS SHE RETURNS HOME

Patsy Durk, 6, Is Victim Of Tragedy In Square This Morning

VEHICLE, LOADED, IS TURNED OVER

Son of County Commissioner Smith Is Hit By Auto

A six-year-old Rogers girl, anxious to get the lunch she had forgotten in departing for school this morning, was killed instantly when she darted in front of a coal truck near her home.

The victim was Patsy Durk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Durk.

The driver of the truck, Stephen Tutor, 34, of Ellsworth, failed in a vain attempt to avoid having his truck strike the child and upset the vehicle, coal and all, in attempting to do so. He was uninjured.

State Patrolman James White said the driver saw the little girl start to cross the street, against the green traffic signal which was in his favor, and swerved the truck to avoid an accident. The heavy vehicle skidded and Patsy was knocked to the ground by the rear wheels which crushed her body.

The tragedy happened at the square in Rogers, almost in front of the child's home. There were several witnesses to the accident.

Tutor was hauling coal to Youngstown for the McCulloch Trucking Co. The load was spilled over the highway when the vehicle overturned.

The victim leaves her parents and one sister, Juanita, aged 8. The body was removed to the Warrick funeral home at Columbiana, pending completion of funeral arrangements.

Two other traffic accidents occurred in the district late yesterday and this morning. One of them involving another school pupil.

Harry Smith, 14, son of County Commissioner and Mrs. John E. Smith, R. D. 2, East Liverpool, suffered a concussion when knocked down by an automobile after alighting from a school bus on Route 30, near Cannons Mills, at a p. m. Monday.

Herbert Gallop, 53, of R. D. 1, Chester, W. Va., driver of the car which hit the boy, was charged with reckless driving by state highway patrolmen. He was fined $50 and cost by Municipal Judge Frank Grosshans in East Liverpool. The fine was suspended on condition that Gallop pay the boy's hospital and other incidental expenses.

The Smith boy was removed to the East Liverpool City hospital, where an X-ray was to be taken to determine if his skull had been fractured.

According to witnesses, the lad alighted from the bus and walked around in front while the bus driver waved. He was struck by Gallop's machine, traveling in the opposite direction.

Automobiles driven by R. W. Wilkinson of R. D. 3, Salem, and Mrs. F. C. McMillen of R. D. 5, Lisbon, figured in an accident on the Lisbon road, two miles north of Lisbon, at 10 a. m. today.

Mrs. McMillen suffered numerous body bruises and was shaken when her car plunged over an embankment after the crash. She was treated by a Lisbon physician. Wilkinson was reported unhurt.

BROTHER, CAN YOU SPARE A MILLION?

President Robert M. Hutchins of University of Chicago has explained to alumni that the university is spending $1,200,000 a year more than its income and can't curtail its budget, a dilemma usually associated with government. Referring to Dr. Hutchins' explanation, as given some months ago in Saturday Evening Post, one learns that further curtailment would entail paying unreasonably low wages to the university's personnel, already underpaid.

The Post article also contained a recommendation that endowed institutions whose income is dwindling as interest rates decline should live off principal. In his report to alumni Dr. Hutchins says the possibility of doing this in Chicago's case is exhausted, therefore the university needs an assured income from gifts of $1,200,000 a year for the next 10 years. He does not ask alumni to advance this amount, but seeks their support in persuading philanthropists to make the money available.

Chicago's plight, modified, is the headache of every endowed institution. Dr. Hutchins points out that 40 per cent of its income has been wiped out by falling interest rates, a typical shrinkage. In the meantime, Price Jones Corp., a firm which specializes in raising funds, reports that total gifts and bequests to a group of 52 universities and colleges declined four per cent in the year ending last June 30 from the previous year. This continues a consistent decline dating back to 1929.

Dependent on gifts for the independence that has given them leadership in education, private colleges and universities are facing the probability of years of starvation and the possibility, in the case of many smaller institutions, of extinction. They have nothing to match the generous allowances made available to tax-supported institutions not as a matter of philanthropy but as a matter of right, backed up by organized pressure groups.

HOSTILITY

Partly by accident, partly by design, a state of suspense has been created in the "war theater." Forebodings of something momentous about to happen are being described. They deal chiefly with expectation that sometime within the next few weeks Germany is going to unleash the "blitzkrieg" it has threatened to unleash since long before the war started last September. There are rumors of intensive preparations for attack and defense.

It must be noted, however, that something has happened to the "war of nerves" since the climax at Munich in September, 1938 . . . and there is good reason to believe that rumors of a belated "blitzkrieg" are related closely to the strategy of inducing fright to win concessions. When fright has become the normal condition, it ceases to be frightening. There is no novelty to it. If men bit dogs every day, a man biting a dog wouldn't be news any more.

Events may prove otherwise, but it is extremely doubtful if either side in the war has sufficient strength to impose its will on the other. There will be no "blitzkrieg," but a war of attrition, punctuated by interludes of military pressure, such as Germany lately has turned against British shipping. Hostility has become the normal condition of life in Europe, and the only genuinely exciting development possible under the circumstances would be a movement for peace.

INCENTIVE

Incentive may be a better word than bonus for the thing that makes a man put in his best ticks, but when George W. Hill, president of American Tobacco Co., tells stockholders he will look for another job if his incentive is removed, he's inviting an invidious comparison.

This is because Mr. Hill is talking about an incentive of $300,000, which was his share last year under the company's "incentive plan." His total earnings were $420,000. Many a willing horse has worked himself to a frazzle for no incentive greater than a wisp of hay at the end of the day's grind—and $300,000, as the boys say, "ain't hay." Mr. Hill's right to get what his services are worth is unquestioned, but the fact remains that most of his countrymen do their raving for an incentive that would be swallowed up in the last three or four digits of his incentive, leaving his regular salary out of the question. Probably that only proves incentive is a relative stimulus, like a man's fondness for apple pie. Some men wouldn't walk around the block for 300,000 pieces of apple pie with cheese on the side and ice cream on top. They'd rather have berry.

LIBERTY'S BACKGROUND

Bedloe's island, famous for the Statue of Liberty, is the scene of a WPA beautification project. The army barracks which have been Liberty's background are being razed—a nice symbolic touch. Perhaps the symbolism goes even further.

The artist's conception of what the island will look like when the work's done has Liberty standing majestically in a setting of geometric precision unmarred by clutter and signs of habitation.

The statue, of course, will look just the same as it has looked since it was unveiled in 1886. Only the surroundings will undergo alteration, a sign of the growing self-consciousness of the surroundings of Liberty everywhere since earlier days.

The tendency to reduce them to order and design—to formalize the atmosphere in which Liberty lives—is a little late in reaching Bedloe's island.

CLAMMING UP

Volumes about the blind spot of the reigning generation of politicians are being written between the lines of the story about census protests. It can be proved that the census is blameless, that the information sought is vital, that no harm is intended, etc., etc.

But it cannot be proved that Americans have changed much since pioneering days when any stranger who asked questions was answered with a glint of the eye. Failure to understand that the vast majority of Americans still feel like clamping up when someone begins prying them open has been one of the errors of the New Dispensation. The census revolt would be funny if it weren't a symptom of something seriously out of whack between the people and their government.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, March 6.

A rather peculiar setup of the planetary scheme may be responsible for some surprising and perplexing developments on this day. This may mainly affect the domestic, social or emotional interests, with probably an unforeseen and uprooting denouement. While the disturbances may be unpredictable as well as breath-taking, the mental adjustment and poise are so soundly based that doubts and difficulties may be composed by good, common sense.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of singular, intriguing and unique experiences, which seem to be mysterious, dangerous and revolutionary. Doubts and disturbances, with perplexities and thrills are indicated, with their root's in subtle, inexplicable and bewildering sources.

A child born on this day, although sensitive, impressionable, subtle and imaginative, fond of mystery and the unique, may have sound judgment and good common sense.

Another thing worth remembering: "Only Fools Drive Recklessly."

Radiophoto Shows Stricken British Liner Domala

While a Royal Air Force plane hovers overhead, the British liner Domala is shown burning off the coast of England as the result of a bomb attack by Nazi airmen. The Domala was enroute from Antwerp, Belgium, to England with 301 persons aboard, many of them British subjects who had been interned in Germany and who had just been exchanged for Germans held in England. British and Dutch vessels picked up many survivors, but 108 were reported lost. Photo flashed by radio from London to New York.

Chemistry Of Intelligence Is Discussed By Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Are there any chemical or physical changes in the brain during active function? In other words, is there a chemistry of intelligence?

There is a great deal of data but we would not like to come to any definite conclusions. The brain requires oxygen, sugar and water. Disturbance in the water balance of the brain is disastrous, resulting in decreased mental efficiency, and when the balance is profoundly upset, coma and delirium.

The water balance of the brain is intimately bound up with the acid-base equilibrium. The epileptic brain is an alkaline brain. The diabetic brain is an acid brain and, if not balanced by proper treatment, results in retarded mentation and stupor.

The brain cannot function at all without oxygen. Balloonists at 25,000 feet or more find their mental reaction so impaired that they cannot make observations.

"Are our thoughts also at the bottom electrical?" asks Dr. Albert P. Mathews, professor of biochemistry at the University of Cincinnati. "Whenever a nerve impulse sweeps over a nerve it is accompanied by an electrical disturbance. When the nerve impulses play back and forth over the commissures of the brain, they are accompanied by this pale lightning of the negative variation. Is that pale lightning what we recognize as consciousness?"

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever Has Rocky Mountain spotted fever ever appeared in the eastern states?

Yes. There have been reports this year from Tennessee and Massachusetts. The disease is spread by infected ticks, and ticks have been found to be very prevalent around Cape Cod. Summer residents find ticks on themselves and on their dogs.

The importance of protecting the hands when removing ticks cannot

The tick season in the eastern United States extends from the first warm days of spring to mid-summer. In Tennessee and other of the southern states, a number of cases were reported in 1939. In the southern states also endemic typhus fever is reported.

In the case of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, small rodents act as reservoirs and the disease is transmitted through the bites of infected ticks. In the case of endemic typhus fever, the animal reservoir is the rat and the insect vector the rat flea.

Both diseases have a sudden onset, with chills and headaches, rapidly rising temperature and a rash three to five days after onset.

Treatment has been tried by the use of sulfanilamide.

"SELF MADE GIRL" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER I

The worst of being self-made, and a success, Lynn Perry thought in her lonely moments, which came often than she cared to admit, was that you couldn't talk about it.

Men boasted about that sort of thing, of course, but men were different. A man could rise from any sort of background, work himself through college, and actually boast about it.

But with a girl it was different. It had to be kept a secret. You had to pretend you were born with the gold spoon in your mouth. You had to pretend you came by everything naturally instead of working and slaving and driving yourself.

Pretend—Lynn was getting sick of it. Sick of herself, Lynn Perry, the best-dressed, best girl in town. Mink coat in the closet. Always the latest and best on her back. Sheerest of cowbelly silk making her slim ankles look slimmer. A manicure and a facial and a shampoo and finger wave every week. Her own luxurious little apartment. Her own maid. And at least one eligible bachelor who wanted to marry her.

What's the matter with you? She asked herself. Why aren't you happy? You've worked for it—you've got it—why don't you want it now you've got it?

Were other people like that? Did they ache to tell all? Was that why criminals went back to the scene of the crime? Was that why so few girls ever really got anywhere? Because they just couldn't help talking about things they shouldn't? Because they didn't have the patience to wait?

And then she'd think of her life. As it might have been—and of her sisters, Claudine and Blanche. Claudine, faded and stooped with overwork and child-bearing, and Blanche who had never had love or romance.

No! No! She couldn't bear that. This was better. Anything was better!

Over and over in her mind, she went over her early life.

She couldn't say: "Look! I've come a long way haven't I?"—but she could think it and she did.

She was the youngest, the last of five children—Claudine and Blanche and Bert and Lawrence—and then 2 years later, herself. Linda, they called her. She changed it to Lynn later.

She remembered her father, oldish and lame, going to work when other men were coming home. He was night watchman in the mill where the boys worked. She remembered her mother's dark eyes and thin white hands, and her voice, querulous and sweet. And, most vividly, her grandmother, who ruled the house, because the mother was an invalid.

She remembered the small, comfortable frame house, where they lived at the edge of the town. At least, they thought it was comfortable then. Nothing impressed her very much. She must have been a queer, self-sufficient child. There was grandma, who washed her and fed her and loved her. There was papa who petted her and mama who disciplined her and the big brothers and sisters who laughed at her and teased her.

It was just a tiny town, in the pleasant wooded country some 50 miles from Philadelphia. A bank and a postoffice and six churches, and a tight little cluster of shops along the main street. And, of course, a school.

All the children from the town went to the school. There were no class distinctions. Senator Scott's granddaughter, Constance, played with the Harrison's chauffeur's girl, Thelma, and Dr. Wagner's little daughter, Ruth, and Linda played with them all.

The Scotts always fascinated her. She was always going there, instead of coming home after school. She'd come home and tell about Mrs. Scott's tea-gowns and Mr. Scott's beautiful russet boots and pale tan riding breeches, and the tall, frosted glass with mint sticking out of it, that old Senator Scott always had in his hand.

Sometimes her mother would punish her for going there without permission, or maybe it was because of the questions she asked about cocktails, and prohibition and other things the Scotts talked and laughed about.

Everyone looked up to the Scotts, of course, but they gossiped about them, too. Hard drinking, hard riding, fast living....

But they had fun. They knew how to live! And nobody else in the town did.

One night Blanche was home from the hospital, where she worked. They were all there but Claudine. They sat around the table, under the hanging lamp with its green glass shade with the beaded fringe, their plates pushed back, coffee cups empty.

Blanche was happy and excited, because she was assured of a permanent position. She was about 20 then, slim and sparkling and eager, her beautiful black hair wound in braids around her well-shaped head, her white skin lightly touched with color.

"And in another year," she said, "I'll be in surgery and then I won't rest until I'm head of it!" Bert, always the cynic, lifted his dark head from his hands. "And then what?" he asked.

"And then—why, I'll be the head!" Blanche repeated, a little mystified.

"Bert got up. 'Yeh,' he said. 'You would. You'd work all your life. You and Claudine and Lawrence and I. Like pa. Work and sweat and then get put on the shelf and die. And you don't have to do it, either, you've got looks. Like Claudine had, and Linda here is going to have. And you can bet SHE won't kill herself working, not that one!'"

"What?" Blanche said. "What?"

Their mother snatched at his coat angrily, as he would have left the room. "Don't you insult your sisters, don't you dare, Bertram Perry!"

"You can't insult them," he said, they're insulting themselves, just as we all are. Wage slaves, satisfied to—"

Linda didn't want to hear about wage slaves, she wanted to hear some more about herself. She piped in her 7-year-old treble, "And what did you say I'm going to be, Bert? What did you say I was going to be when I grow up?"

She was so small and eager he didn't have the heart to disappoint her. He laughed, and then the others smiled, and the tension was broken. "Well, what ARE you going to be, Linda?"

"Oh," she said, "I'm going to be a queen!"

When they laughed, she was terribly hurt and went and hid in the shadow of grandma's skirts.

HITLER'S PEACE IS TOO COSTLY

Peace-Seekers Find Little To Go On In Talks With Welles

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Hitler's ambitious peace terms as reportedly outlined to Special American Ambassador Sumner Welles are, of course, those of a conqueror and impossible of acceptance by the Anglo-French Allies, but they are neither more nor less than observers expected and haven't altered the situation at all.

This session after war's end need find no disappointment in the foe's claims, albeit there is little apparent encouragement. We at least have Hitler's top price, which represents either the heights of optimism or bold effort to drive a hard horse-deal.

Time Not Ripe Yet

One thing would seem to be quite clear—that while this probably is a good time for Undersecretary Welles to collect information relating to prospects, the time hasn't arrived for peace overtures. He undoubtedly will encounter just as firm a stand in Paris and London, especially as regards the determination to "crush Hitlerism."

The cold fact is that not all the cards in this war are on the table yet. Important plays are in the process of being developed.

The Russo-Finnish conflict is an outstanding example. That has as many potentialities as a porcupine has quills. Either the Finns will be rescued by their friends or ultimately will be smashed by the Reds.

If the Muscovites overrun the little republic without outside intervention this presumably will leave the Reds still "neutral" so far as concerns the war between Germany and the Allies. But England and France may intervene, thereby forcing Russia into the main conflict on the side of Germany, and opening up a new battle front against the Nazis. Or possibly Norway and Sweden might join the Allies in defense of the Finns.

Too Late To Save Finns?

Every time you figure out a new combination you give the general war a fresh complexion. Just at this moment it is hard to say whether the Allies haven't delayed too long to save the gallant Finns. And besides all this, there is the additional very strong probability that there must be a test of the fighting machines before either side will be willing to enter a peace conference.

Or the people of one of the warring nations may serve notice on their government that they won't go on further.

Apocryphal of this last thought, it is interesting to note that even during Mr. Welles' visit in Berlin, Allied airplanes were reported flying over the German capital—dropping propaganda leaflets to try to get the people to revolt against Hitler. The Anglo-French pair are banking a lo on this.

Ohio Congressmen, Restless, Anxious To Begin Campaigns

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, March 5—Ohio house members are getting restless. They want to adjourn, get home, and begin campaigns for re-election.

The state primary is May 14 and Buckeye members are hoping—perhaps vainly—that congress might put on a burst of unusual speed, clear its decks of more important legislation, and adjourn early that month.

The general belief, however, is that it will be June, maybe July, before the session ends.

Seek Renomination

All but two Ohio representatives apparently are certain to seek re-nomination. Rep. Dudley White (R) of Norwalk forewent another try for the house to run for the senate. He will oppose Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland in the primary for nomination to the seat now held by Senator Donahey (D).

Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins (R) of Ironton is wavering. He hasn't decided whether to campaign for re-nomination or give up his seat in order to try for the senatorial nomination. He is dean of his party's Buckeye delegation.

The possibility that Rep. James C. Polk (D) would not be a candidate for re-nomination faded last week with disclosure in Portsmouth that petitions of candidacy were being circulated in his behalf.

Rep. McGregor (R), of West Lafayette elected last week to finish the term of the late William A. Ashbrook (D) will seek re-nomination and election to the full term beginning next year.

Mrs. Chester C. Bolton (R) of

Cleveland also will campaign for a full term. She was elected last week to complete the term of her late husband.

Seven Democrats Left

Election of McGregor in the 17th district left Ohio with seven Democrats in the house. In the last session, there were 22 Democrats and two Republicans—White and Jenkins.

State's first woman member of congress, Mrs. Bolton, advised friends here that she intended to carry on quietly much of the work started by her late husband.

She plans for the time being to use the office occupied by Mr. Bolton. The late representative's staff has been kept intact and Mrs. Bolton indicated that she did not contemplate changes.

Republicans and Democrats alike expressed gratification at the election of a woman member from Ohio.

Buckeye Republicans still are cheering victories in the two special elections, convinced that the results indicated a statewide trend away from the national administration.

The Democrats refused to be gloomy. They argued that off-year balloting never attracted a heavy Democratic vote.

They suggested further that local questions, particularly in the 17th district, had as much to do with the outcome as did anything else.

Glass Maker's Art Revealed In Salem Book Club Program

A valuable collection of rare and unusual pieces of glass arranged by the members and an extensive display by the speaker lent interest to the talk on "Early American Glass" by Mrs. Howard Ferguson of Youngstown at a meeting of the Book club yesterday at the library.

Mrs. Ferguson, dealer and collector, discussed the earliest known glass making in Egypt and Europe and the earliest makers of glass in this country. The growing interest in antiques, especially in glass in recent years, was illustrated by the exhibit of beautiful glass owned by Book club members, many of whom are collectors.

Mrs. Ferguson told interesting details of the early American makers of glass, their lives and their products, explaining the points about the pieces which lead collectors to value them.

Glass on Display
Several hundred pieces of glass, American and foreign, made up the display arranged by the members.

The program also included several musical numbers: Piano duets, "Morning Mood" and "Norwegian Dance" (Edward Grieg) Mrs. E. E. Dyball and Mrs. F. J. Stoudt; vocal selections, "A Heart That's Free" and "Blackbird Singing" Miss Reba Dilworth, accompanied by her sister, Lois; piano solos, "Meditation" and "Sundown," Miss Lois Dilworth.

During the business meeting a

FLOOD DANGERS DECREASE TODAY

Most of State's Flooded Highways Are Re-opened

morning, against flood stage of 52. Fed by rain-swollen tributaries, the river rose 8 to 10 feet throughout the upper valley but engineers in the Huntington district said it was "leveling out."

Floods Claim Four Lives
Flash floods yesterday claimed four lives in the state and the highway department reported 51 roads inundated.

Two were drowned when a foot bridge was swept away near St. Clairsville, an aged man toppled into a swollen stream near Pikeston and nine-year-old Donald Phaxton was drowned at Marion when a boat hit a bridge pier.

The boy was riding with five other persons who managed to hold to the bridge until rescued.

In the North Atlantic states, utility companies and property owners today estimated in the millions the damage left by the worst rain and sleet storm in a quarter of a century.

Public and private emergency crews worked all night to patch economic life lines—crippled communication and power systems, interrupted fire-alarm circuits and blocked traffic.

The most apparent damage was in northern New Jersey, New York City and suburban Westchester county and Long Island areas which were on the fringe of the $500,000,000 storm of 1938, the greatest in the history of the nation.

Coast Pounded Hard
Riding a northeasterly wind that reached velocities as high as 70 miles an hour, the rain that began Saturday froze as it fell early yesterday; then last night it turned to snow. Strong tides pounded the New Jersey and New England coasts to add to the damages.

Power lines snapped, leaving many communities without heat, light or telephone service. Thousands of trees and bushes were crushed. Many rural schools closed.

The sleet storm halted many Connecticut industries. A fire menace was created in the Bronx in New York City when 800 fire alarm boxes went out of commission.

At least six deaths were reported—three of them attributed to the storm in New England; two traffic fatalities in New Jersey Sunday night and a Pennsylvania man who toched a live wire blown down by the storm.

Station WABC of the Columbia Broadcasting system, whose transmitter is at Wayne, N. J., was off the air for six and a half hours after ice broke the popper line.

Too Much Hurry
TOLEDO, March 5.—His rush to get to a banquet and receive a safe driving award from his employer halted the record of Harold Holt, 25. On the way, he was arrested for speeding.

Reparations in Question

The governor was unable to say what property owners could reasonably

 "The state has jurisdiction," he

National agencies were enlisted to

Anna Naglee, star of "Victoria the Great" and "Queen of Destiny" and other successful English films, makes her American screen debut as "Nurse Edith Cavell" in the picture of that name at the State
 Wednesday only.

In support of the English actress are Edna May Oliver, May Robson, ZaSu Pitts, George Sanders, and H.
 B. Warner.

Merciful To All

The story depicts the activities trial and tragic end of the valorous war-time nurse, whose tasks of mercy were rendered not only to Allied soldiers, helping them escape to their own lines, but German as well. Executed as a spy by Germany, the valiant Englishwoman has become one of the martyrs whose lives were given in a hopeless protest against the evils of blind, inexorable militarism.

Thrilling in the adventures of the nurse and her companions in aiding escaping prisoners, dramatic in her steadfast determination to continue that aid though her own life was endangered, the picture is profoundly stirring. Miss Neagle's brilliant creation of the character of the World War nurse is to be listed among the finest performances ever recorded on the screen.

No attempt is made in the picture to condemn any one person or nation or group of individuals, but the story it illustrates by unromanticized, historically correct filming is powerful and dramatic.

Tracy Film Concludes

At the State for the last times tonight is one of the best adventure films in the screen's history, "Northwest Passage," starring Spencer Tracy with Robert Young,
 Ruth Hussey and Walter Brennan.
 The Grand's Wednesday attractions will be: "Thou Shalt Not Kill," with Charles Bickford, Owen Davis, Jr., and Paul Guilfoyle in the story of a priest obligated to respect the confidence of a murderer at the cost of an innocent man's life; and a Joe Penner comedy,

 "The Day the Bookies Wept," with Betty Grable, Richard Lane and Tom Kennedy.

Try the Classics—a gold mine of value.

Two Champions Defend Titles In City Bowling Tourney

John Meier and Tom Reese Out To Repeat As Champs In Handicap Tenpin Meet

Defending Champions To Be Missing From Five-Man and Doubles Events; Complete Schedule For Pin Tournament Announced

Two Salem bowling champions will attempt to repeat in the fifth annual City Handicap Tenpin tournament which opens at the Grate Recreation alleys one week from today.

Bidding for his second straight singles championship will be Johnny Meier, who won the individual event last year with a 661 score. Tom Reese will be back to defend his all-events championship won last year with a 1,914 total.

Reese was the star of the 1939 tournament, winning money in the five-man, doubles, singles and all-events championships for the second year while the doubles team of Paul Cover and Bill Finley, which won the two-man event with a 1,257 count, was broken up when Cover moved to Erie, Pa., early this year.

Finley will have Ralph Gregg as his partner in the doubles event this year.

Odds are against Meier and Reese winning the singles and all-events championships for the second year since no champion has been able to repeat in the five-year history of the tournament.

With a record entry of 53 teams in the five-man event, 113 pairs in the doubles and 172 individuals in the singles, the forthcoming tournament will be the largest in the history of the Salem Bowling association which sponsors the annual event.

The five-man entry comprises 72 per cent of the total membership of the association.

Closes to $300 in prizes will be awarded to winning teams and bowlers. The prize list is now being arranged by officials of the association.

Starts Next Tuesday
Competition in the five-man event will get under way next Tuesday night and continue Wednesday, Thursday and Friday with two shifts in action each night.

Doubles and singles will be rolled the second week of the tournament, starting Monday, March 18. Two shifts of doubles and singles will be in action on Monday and Tuesday nights, while three shifts are scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

Bowlers will roll in the singles immediately after the doubles, except in a few cases where men are entered only in the doubles.

CHAMPION OUT OF OHIO CAGE TOURNEY PLAY

Akron North Among List Of Victims In Sectional Events

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, March 5.—Ohio's High school basketball go into district tournament play this week—final lap on the road to the state championship finals—but Akron North's defending Class A kings, and once-beaten Middletown and Mount Vernon will not be there.

Akron North and Cincinnati Roger Bacon, last year's big league finalists, were washed out of the title chase Saturday along with Middletown, Mount Vernon and a host of other highly-regarded quintets, as a wave of upsets swept across the state. Hamilton and Newark, both champions within the last few seasons, were other victims.

North Canton Rolls Along
In Class B the casualties were as heavy as in Class A, although North Canton, defending champion, rolled on the unbeaten trail it has followed for two years. Smithfield of Jefferson county retained the year's best record by noosing out the champion.

Sandusky St. Mary's, losing half of the finals cast in Class B last season, remained in the running with a 34-26 win over Woodville in the sectionals, but Pettisville, another northwestern district stand-out, was pushed aside by Ottoville, 39-33.

New Philadelphia in the east, Canan McKinley in the northeast, and Cincinnati Woodward in the southwest continued unbeaten through the sectionals, and appeared to be certain qualifiers for the state tournament in Class A.

The Class A champs surrendered their laurels with a 25-19 loss to Akron West; Cincinnati Roger Bacon dropped a 34-28 decision to Cincinnati Elder; Middletown was surprised by Dayton Fairview 31-29, while the little Monroe, which however, must get this year's season out of the Hamilton powerhouse 39-37.

The Hamilton-Monroe result was the week's big surprise. Hamilton was the only team to beat Middletown during the regular season, while Monroe had dropped eight games to such squads as Fairfield, Oxford Stewart, and Seven Mile—the latter, the birthplace of baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

New Philadelphia and Canton McKinley had fairly easy times keeping their status clean in the sectionals, but Cincinnati Woodward needed two overtime periods to shake loose Walnut Hills, 23 to 21. That win, however, practically assured Woodward a berth at Columbus March 14, 15 and 16.

All Negro Team
Down around Dayton they're rooting for Dunbar High, a Negro school, to send the first all-colored team to the state meet. Dunbar county tournament play three weeks ago, only 150 are left for the district frays. Of that group 16 Class A and 16 Class B teams will come to the state tournament.

BOWLING RESULTS

The sixth-place Deming Co. team turned on full steam in the American league at the Masonic temple alleys last night, shattering the two league records by firing a 1050 single game and a 2818 series.

Johnny Meier paced Demings to the record single game which ranks as the highest rolled in any Salem league this season. Meier had 232, combining his score with V. Vesey's 227, Harvey Lottman's 223, Lester Koenreich's 202 and Wilson Morlan's 169.

Lottman posted a 590 total for high score in the 2818 series. Demings won two of their three games with the third-place Democrats.

The second-place Fernengel Colts gained two games on the leading Electric Furnace by winning three games on a forfeit while the Furnace dropped two games to Fitzpatrick Service. The Colts now trail the Furnace by nine games.

In another American league match, the Ohio Edison swept three games from Lease Drugs.

The top-ranking Colonial Finance protected its 10-game lead in the Quaker City league by winning two of three games with the Lape Hotel at the Grate Recreation alleys.

The second-place Althouse Motors kept pace with the Finance five, winning two of three games with Flooding & Reynard Drugs.

Other Quaker City matches saw Coy Buicks take two games from the Golden Eagle, the Masons win two games from Burt Capel Realty and the Salem Motors sweep three games from the Columbiana Tyne Club.

A 2913 total was turned in by the Salem Eagles in defeating the New Castle Moose by 280 pins in a special match at New Castle last Sunday. Ralph Gregg led the Eagles, with a 637 series, including a fine 268 single game. Bill Finley had 627 and Merle White 601.

The Eagles posted a 1024 score in the second game of the special match.

The Columbiana Varian Bakery ladies lost to a Salem ladies team, 1662 to 1927, at the Grate Recreation alleys in a recent match.

CARROLL CLUB EDGES MOTORS IN CLOSE TILT

Althouse Team Dropped Into Tie For Lead In Class A

The Althouse Motors fell from sole possession of first place in the fifth round race of the Class A basketball league last night, losing to the Carroll Club, 40 to 38, in a thrill-packed contest.

It was the Motors' first set-back on the fifth round, dropping them into a tie for first place with the Carroll Club. Both teams have won two games, lost one.

The game produced one of the fastest scoring spurts ever seen in the Class A league as the two teams, battling on even terms in the fourth quarter, flipped six field goals through the baskets in the last minute of play.

Nedek's Shot Wins
The Carroll Club came from behind twice in the final minute to tie the score, then won the game on Tommy Nedek's long shot from three-quarters of the length of the floor.

The Motors had things all their own way in the first half, holding a 14-3 lead at the end of the first quarter and a 20-13 advantage at halftime. But in the third quarter, the Carroll Club started to click, and by the time the fourth period began under way the score was deadlocked at 27-all. The fourth-quarter battle was a see-saw affair with the outcome of the contest in doubt right up to the final horn.

Wally Linder led the Carroll Club scoring with 13 points. Paul Stratton paced the Motors with 19 points.

Roberts Men's Shop gained its first victory of the fifth round in the other Class A game, upsetting the Ohio State Employment Service, 44 to 36. Both teams finished the game with four men after each had lost a player via the personal foul rule.

Roberts led 9-6 at the end of the first quarter, 20-13 at halftime and 36-26 at the close of the third period.

Center Bill Schaeffer and Guard Gib Everhart led Roberts to the victory, Schaeffer scoring 16 points and Everhart 13.

LOOT IS $138 IN LISBON ROBBERY

The youth drove up to the station at 3 p. m. yesterday and, after ordering the tank of his car filled, asked if he might step inside to get warm. He parked his car at the side of the station.

The robber loitered about the station, departed later for supper, and came back to join several Lisbon men in loafing about the station, the officers learned. Rogan had placed the youth under suspicion earlier in the afternoon but with the others in the station last night he felt more at ease to go about his work.

Called To Grease Car

The attendant received a car for a grease job at 9 p. m. and had to go into the grease pit. While he was there, the other men who had been in the station departed and then the youth "worked" a safety lock on the safe and went out the front door.

Rogan, in the grease pit, saw him leave and clambered out. The robber had jumped into his car and fled east on E. Lincoln way. Rogan immediately called the sheriff's office.

The thief was about five feet eight inches tall, was hairless, and wore a light overcoat. State highway patrolmen believe him to be the same thug who staged "gas" station robberies at Wooster and Galion.

200 Girls Take Part

More than 200 Salem girls are participating in the Girl Scout program which is open to girls from 7 to 14 years of age. Divided into troops according to ages, the girls from 7 to 10 are Brownie Scouts; from 10 to 14, Intermediate Scouts, and over 14, Senior Girl Scouts.

It is the aim of the newly-formed council to make Scouting available to every girl in Salem who wishes it. Girls now affiliated with troops have endorsed the Girl Scout program as an interesting and satisfying activity.

Leaders of the Girl Scout movement point out: "Girl Scouting offers to a girl the opportunity to develop wide resources and interests so that life need never be colorless nor flavorless for her. Girl Scouting gives her opportunities to learn how to get along with others, to acquire that sense of social responsibility which is so badly needed by everyone who must grow up to citizenship in a complex modern world."

"In a Scout Troop a girl learns to share with other girls her own age the fun and joy of doing interesting things of her own choice. Permitting activities of the Girl Scout is the code embodied in the Girl Scout laws. The working out of the law of honesty, loyalty, usefulness, friendliness, courtesy, cheerfulness and thrift becomes a part of the girl's daily life."

"Into the fields of homemaking, nature, outdoor living, sports and games, community life, international friendship, dramatics and literature arts and crafts, music and dancing, health and safety—the normal range of a girl's interests—she learns to bring standards of value that set character above mere routine performance and intelligent understanding above material rewards or gain."

EUROPEAN WAR IS DEADLOCKED

Way Out Not In Sight, Say American Military Observers

WASHINGTON — After six months of the European war, American military men are in substantial agreement that the conflict has reached a deadlock and that the way out is not in sight.

Otherwise, officers whose duty is to form judgments unclouded by sympathies are divided both on the significance of events thus far and on the outlook for the future.

They differ on whether a military decision is likely to result from the existing lineup of forces, and without that, whether time favors the British-French Allies or Germany.

Few Expect Mass Offense

Few military men expect a mass offensive of World war style on the western front with the advent of spring, and few believe that the final outcome will be affected materially by the fate of Finland.

A cautious majority inclines to the view that the Allies already have won the upper hand, and that economic strangulation and an eventual stroke of some kind should ultimately bring the Nazis to terms.

An impressive minority, which includes some highly-placed officials with access to confidential advices from abroad, contends privately that the British and French face the greater peril from the long siege-war of attrition, starvation and nerves which they anticipate.

Germany, by this estimate, is offsetting effectively the loss of overseas commerce by drawing oil and other supplies from Russian and Balkan sources; can defeat any prospective military thrust; has a disciplined population less likely to crack under pressure than the British and French.

At the moment many professional observers see the most promising chance for a break in the deadlock in successful British-French efforts to enlist Allies and set up new fronts which will close the back door to Germany.

There are some, too, who see the possibility of victory for a desperate Nazi "total war" onslaught by air.

But until there is a shift in the lineup forces, the contending powers obviously have a powerful checkmate for any threat by land, sea or air.

To some qualified military men, the British and French appear most vulnerable in the air.

The most authoritative information recently available credits Germany with more than 20,000 warplanes of all types, as many as the Nazis' foes combined. More important is information that the Allies have not been able to overtake the Nazi rate of production, despite help from the United States, and do not appear able to close the gap for a year or more.
